

New Vet Appointed Joins Cottingham Surgery

The Kingston Veterinary Group has expanded the resources at its Cottingham surgery by appointing Joanne Black as an additional vet.

Joanne has come to Cottingham from a practice in Darlington. She qualified as a vet in July 2008 after completing the five-year veterinary course at the University of Edinburgh's Royal (Dick) School of Veterinary Studies.

At Cottingham she is working alongside fellow vet Mayleen Cook and a core team of Margaret Thompson, head receptionist, and Ruth Bryant, veterinary nurse.

Kingston Veterinary Group Director Paul Atkinson said: "I'm delighted to welcome Joanne to our Cottingham surgery. We have had a practice in Cottingham for over 40 years, and Joanne's appointment highlights our continuing commitment to providing the highest levels of service in the village."

The Cottingham surgery, on New Village Road, has operating and dental suites, three consulting rooms, and facilities for "puppy parties".
